Dr. Anderson has a Ph.D. in philosophical theology from the University of Edinburgh. He is a member of the Society of Christian Philosophers, the British Society for Philosophy of Religion, and the Evangelical Philosophical Society. Course Description

The written thesis provides the student with a means to demonstrate academic skill in interdisciplinary theological studies and to contribute to that body of knowledge. In the thesis, a 75-page monograph, the student will show mastery of the skills of comprehension and evaluation. The thesis is a demonstration that the student is able to analyze, synthesize and apply interdisciplinary theological research, including chapters on relevant church history, systematic theology and biblical studies. In addition, the student's thesis should show how his research makes a contribution to theological literature and the ministry of the church

Course Objectives

Upon completing the course, students will know the following ...

- How to craft a thesis topic as a propositional statement
- How to write a preliminary annotated bibliography
- How to use a theological library
- How to apply theological disciplines to the research topic
- How to collaborate on theological research with a professor

COURSE OUTLINE

Integrative Thesis, OCE751, 3 hours

Professor of Record:

Dr. James Anderson

Reformed Theological Seminary, Distance Education

Integrative Thesis is a four-month course that is driven by a rather tight schedule. Please remember that it's your responsibility to follow the timetable. The order of steps we've presented for this course are recommended steps, based on what has worked well for other students in the past. However, every student's thesis and the developmental steps for creating the thesis are different. If at any time, you need additional help, please contact RTS Distance Education Student Services at dessa@rts.edu.

During the first month, you will participate in what we call a “stumbling block” simulation. It's designed to answer any questions or concerns you might have regarding the development of your thesis. It will also provide helpful advice and tips for identifying and overcoming potential stumbling blocks you might encounter. Between reading assignments and quizzes, you'll start working on composing the Big Four--that's the thesis statement, paragraph, outline, and bibliography. Here is a more detailed breakdown of the activities you'll complete in

Month One:

Week(s)	Day(s)	Activities
Week 1	Day 1	View Introduction Simulation
Week 1	Day 1	View Confidence Simulation 1
Week 1	Day 1	View Stumbling Blocks Simulation
Week 1	Days 2-3	View Big Four Part 1 Simulation and Upload Coursework
Week 1	Days 4-5	View Big Four Part 1 Simulation and Complete Frame Reading and Quiz
Week 2	Day 6	View Big Four Part 1 Simulation and Complete Vyhmeister Reading and Quiz
Week 2	Days 6-10	View Big Four Part 2 Simulation and Work on Thesis Statement and Paragraph

Week 4	Days 16-20	View Big Four Part 2 Simulation and Work on Annotated Bibliography
Week 4	Day 20	View Big Four Part 3 Simulation and Submit Big Four for Faculty Review
Week 4	Day 20	View Confidence Simulation 2

During the second month, you'll refine the work you've done on the Big Four. It's also during this time that a Faculty Advisor will be assigned to you. The two of you will be able to discuss in great detail the direction of your thesis. This is a great time to learn from the knowledge and experience of your Faculty Advisor. Here is a more detailed breakdown of the activities you'll complete in Month Two.

Month Two:

Week(s)	Day(s)	Activities
Week 1	Days 21-25	Check Big Four Forum for Posts and Receive Faculty Advisor Assignment
Week 1	Day 25	Schedule Phone Call 1 with Faculty Advisor

Week 4	Days 36-40	Discuss Big Four Revisions with Faculty Advisor During Phone Call 2
Week 4	Day 40	Log Phone Conversation in Forum
Week 4	Day 40	View Confidence Simulation 3

By the time you complete the third month, you will be well on your way toward finishing a rough draft of your thesis. During this time, again between reading assignments, activities, and quizzes, you'll participate in phone calls and forum posts with your Faculty Advisor to make sure that your writing and research is on par with the level of work we expect from all our students. During the third month, you'll also get to experience another simulation to help you craft the right tone and tenor for your paper. Here is a more detailed breakdown of the activities you'll complete in Month Three.

Month Three:

Week(s)	Day(s)	Activities
Week 1	Days 41	View Tone and Tenor Simulation
Week 1-3	Day 41-55	View Rough Draft Simulation and Work on Creating Thesis Rough Draft
Week 3	Days 55	View Confidence Simulation 4
Week 3	Day 55	Schedule Phone Call 3 with Faculty Advisor/Submit Thesis Rough Draft for Review
Week 4	Days 56-60	Discuss Thesis Rough Draft Revisions with Faculty Advisor During Phone Call 3
Week 4	Day 60	Log Phone Conversation in Forum

Your fourth month will be busy. You'll work with your Faculty Advisor to refine any areas of your thesis that need refining. You'll most likely have your ideas well outlined, your arguments properly researched, and a good portion of your wording down pat. Much of this time will be spent putting the final touches on your paper and focusing on formatting it. Here is a more detailed breakdown of the activities you'll complete in Month Four.
